

My dream house

Activity sheet

- Target group: 8+ years old
- Duration: 15 minutes
- Material needed:
  - Pictogram sheets
  - A blank sheet of paper
  - Scissors and glue
- Key competence: Daily life skills

GENERAL OBJECTIVES

This activity allows children to express their dreams and aspirations by choosing pictograms to create their dream house.

Through this creative process, they can articulate their future hopes while simultaneously developing and expanding their vocabulary related to housing and living environments. This dual-purpose activity not only fosters imagination but also enhances language skills and communication abilities.

IMPLEMENTATION

- 1. Giving the instructions: Explain the goal of the activity to the children.
Have them sit, close their eyes, and think about what their dream house would look like.
- 2. Cutting the pictograms: Distribute each child a copy of the 5 pictogram sheets (or your own DIY sheets) and ask them to cut out pictograms that describe their dream house and what would be inside.
- 3. Glueing the pictograms: Once they have cut everything they need, the children must glue the pictograms on a blank sheet of paper to represent their dream house.
- 4. Show and tell: When they are done with making their dream house sheet, ask the children to come and explain what their dream house would look like.

POTENTIALS FOR AAC SKILLS DEVELOPMENT

This activity holds significant potential for speech development. It provides a hands-on, engaging way for children to practice and expand their language skills.

As they select and arrange pictograms to represent their dream house, they encounter new vocabulary and concepts related to housing and daily living. The process encourages verbal expression as they describe their choices and explain their ideas, promoting sentence formation and coherent speech.

Additionally, the activity's interactive and visual nature supports comprehension and retention of new words, enhancing both expressive and receptive language abilities. Overall, this activity not only stimulates creative thinking but also serves as a practical tool for improving children's communication skills.
